2. Overview of the DJSI

DJSI is an ESG investment indicator jointly created by US-based S&P Dow Jones and the Swiss ESG investment research and ratings firm RobecoSAM in 1999. DJSI is widely used when institutional investors select companies to invest in with the expectation of the long-term growth of the company and the resolution of social issues.

Around 2,500 global leading companies are evaluated on the basis of “economic, environmental, and social” aspects, and companies in the top 10 to 20 percent of each segment, globally (DJSI World) and for each region (DJSI Asia Pacific, Europe, North America, etc.) are selected as the index components in DJSI.
